Excerpt: . . . 27th ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE U. S. B. ASSOCIATION. HELD IN BALTIMORE, MD. , MAY 24, 25, 26, 1887. Proceedings opened on the evening of the 24th, by an address of welcome by Hon. James Hodges, Mayor. Of course, a citys chief magistrate who could Bo far degrade his office as to appear as spokesman at a liquor dealers convention would do his best, or worst, as you choose, to boom liquor, its dispensers, and dispensaries. Mayor Hodges speech was a disgrace to the city he represented, or, can it be written, misrepresented It ought not to be possible that a majority, or even a large minority, of Baltimores respectable citizens favor grog-shops with their malign generations. And yet it must be that they do approve them, else how comes it that a man of Mr. Hodges avowed principles is placed, by election, in a position where he can welcome liquor lords on the part of the city and its people And if the more respectable voters join with the slums to elect to the chief power and place of a city a devotee of groggeries, how can they expect the. enforcement of the laws of order and morality Official underlings, through all. grades, always ape the tone of their chief. Mayor Hodges out-beers beer in his efusive welcome. He says: I am not exaggerating the language of compliment when I tell you that your friends who reside here, moved by the plenitude of...
