Excerpt: . . . sec. 684 are in complete harmony. Under them we find the procedure to be that the evidence is taken down, not, word for word, but in narrative form by the justice, then read over to the witness and any necessary corrections made and then signed by the witness. Then after all the witnesses have signed their depositions the justice asks the accused if he wishes to have them read again and if he does not dispense with the reading they are read again. But sec. 683 contains more and it is the additional part which causes the confusion. It provides that the evidence of the witnesses may be taken in shorthand and that where it is so taken it shall not be necessary that it be read over or signed by the witnesses. Now it is quite clear that this reading being dispensed with, any reading to the accused cannot be a reading again and, therefore, cannot come within the express words of sec. 684. The history of the legislation is somewhat interesting though not as illuminating as in some cases. In The Criminal Procedure Act, ch. 174, R. S. C. , 1886, sec. 69 contains the substantive provisions of the present sec. 682. Then sec. 70 provides that After the examinations of all the witnesses for the prosecution have been completed the justice shall, without requiring the attendance of the witnesses, read or cause to be read to the accused, the depositions taken...
