INTRODUCTION. I Sit down to write a little treatise, which will perhaps subject me to abuse from the self-righteous, to misrepresentation from the hypocritical, and to reproach even from the honestly prejudiced. Some may refuse to read it; and some will misconceive its tendency. I would have delayed its publication had the choice been permitted me, until the public was better prepared to receive it: but the enemies of reform have already foisted the subject, in an odious form, on the public; and I have no choice left. If, therefore, I shock the honest prejudices of any, let them bear in mind, that the occasion is not of my seeking. The subject I intend to discuss is strictly physiological, although connected, like many other physiological subjects, with political economy, morals, and social science. In discussing it, I must speak as plainly as physicians and physiologists do. What I mean, I must say. Pseudo-civilized man, that anomalous creature who has been not inaptly defined an animal ashamed of its own body, may take it ill that I speak simply: I cannot help that. A foreign princess travelling towards Madrid to become queen of Spain, passed through a little town of the Peninsula, famous for its manufactories of gloves and stockings. The magistrates of the place, eager to show their loyalty to their new queen, presented her, on her arrival, with a sample of those commodities for which their town was...
